Forecast For East Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Friday 17 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Frost and fog lifting slowly, some bright or sunny spells.

Today:
Dry with some bright or sunny spells, mainly across Derbyshire. Some areas of cloud. Fog affecting many areas, some dense, will be slow to clear and remaining chilly. Fog reforming and thickening during Friday evening, especially where skies are clearer. Maximum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Tonight:
A misty night with fog likely to reform and thicken to become dense once more. Light and variable winds. Frost also returning with freezing fog. Perhaps clearer over hills. Minimum temperature -1 deg C (30 deg F).

Saturday:
A cold day with some frost then generally dull and misty with fog slow to thin and break during Saturday. A few bright or sunny spells, mostly across western hills. Maximum temperature 7 deg C (45 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
A cloudy picture is likely for Sunday with fog mostly lifting. Remaining dry. Turning brighter with sunshine likely for Monday and Tuesday and feeling cold. Increasing chance of coastal showers.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.